Always wanted to work in the Medical Device industry? Teleon; an international fast-growing, dynamic company that strives every day to improve vision for patients, is looking for you. Would you like to work at the most sustainable company in the East Gelderland region with an excellent working atmosphere? And are you familiar with all the complexities of running multidisciplinary projects? Then read on, because we are looking for a Project Manager.

Project Manager

Your role

As a Project Manager at Teleon you are responsible for the daily leadership of large projects involving staff from many different departments. This role involves planning and evaluating the activities of all involved resources to ensure that the intended project deliverables are achieved within the set frameworks and conditions. Amongst other things you will have to:

- Ensure successful project initiation, planning, execution, monitoring, control, and closure
- Define project deliverables and scope and establish resource planning, including any dependencies, and carry out proper risk management
- Facilitate meetings by preparing an agenda, ensuring the right people's attendance, adherence to meeting rules, taking minutes, tracking actions, etc.
- Conduct project evaluations (Lessons Learned) at the end of the project, ensuring relevant issues are considered at the start of the next project
- Organise and manage Project Start Ups
- Continuously improve the entire project management process, implement best practices, and initiate improvement proposals

Your profile

As Project Manager, you hold a bachelor's or master's degree or equivalent through experience. You bring at least 5 years of proven work experience in project management, preferably in the medical technical industry. Communication skills are absolutely crucial for this job and you need a very good command of both Dutch and English (speaking and writing). To make our projects successful you need to be able to communicate effectively within our own team, but also with our international partners. Motivating and coaching of project team members comes naturally to you and proper stakeholder management in an environment with sometimes conflicting interests holds no secrets for you.

Additionally, you are a creative thinker who approaches challenges with a solution-oriented mindset. You demonstrate initiative, take responsibility, and are committed to excellence in your work. If you recognise yourself in all (or most) of the above, then you are a great addition to our team!

This is what our employees say
